Introduction

In the current digital era, entertainment media—including movies—have a bigger influence on how society views the world and what values are vital. In addition to providing hours of amusement, movies are an excellent educational tool. The film "Fall" shows us how to approach any issue head-on, remain composed, and keep our attention on the task at hand. In an attempt to fulfill their dream of achievement, they exert every last bit of their ability. When something is unknown, emotions run the gamut. We have to learn to accept the facts as they are presented to us, even though they are terrible truths derived from honest confessions.

A fascinating fact about the production of this fall film exists. In an interview with FortworthReport.org, the director stated that the tower climbing activity is authentic. A 100-foot tower was constructed by the production crew and positioned atop Shadow Mountain. Grace sobbed as soon as she reached the top of the tower on her first trip since the height and vista were so scary and the difficulty of filming this movie was so reasonable. However, Grace was able to control herself after a few tries, and the shooting proceeded without a hitch.

Garimella and Mahamoudou et al (2022) carried out critical reviews of these phenomena in fall film. Recent works have mainly focused on horizontal tubular falling film exchangers Even though flat plate absorbers are becoming more and more used in industry because of their good heat transfer properties, low cost, and compact design which is particularly relevant in the particular instance of absorbers, there aren't much research that focuses on these technologies. The mass media is one of the many tools available to impact education in this day and age. The mass media is becoming more and more significant in this day and age. It may readily access the media from any location.

Due to technological advances, television is a mass media that is easily access to the public for respective interests because it has an audio-visual that can be understood by all ages. One part of television that can make a big impact is movie. Movie has a very important role in influencing the mind with attractive images and good audio. Movie has become a necessity for some people and has a role in teaching educational value. Movie itself also inspired by true story which relate to us and there are also added some flavor for entertainment purposes. There are several functions of the mass media, namely to provide information, to educate, and for entertainment. Now, movie can also provide educational value contained in the storyline or characters in the movie. The values contained in the movie can influence the mind to build an educated character.

According to Riemer (2010: 22), there is a connection between the differences in semantics and pragmatics and the meaning of sentences and utterances. While pragmatics studies the meaning of utterances and other language use rules, semantics studies the meaning of sentences. While pragmatics focuses on how these fundamental meanings are applied in real-world situations, including how different expressions are assigned referents in various contexts and the various uses of language, semantics studies the basic, literal meaning of words as thought of primarily as components of a language system.

In this movie about Becky and Hunter's journey to overcome their fear, they approach it with the appropriate mindset and consider their next move carefully. I can relate to Becky's experiences in this film, as we all experience dread at some point. As a friend, Hunter was able to reassure Becky and help her overcome her fear by giving her the willpower and support to face it head-on.

In addition to offering visual pleasure, this article explores the significance of the educational values in the movie Fall. We will demonstrate many dialogue passages that, when closely examined, impart valuable lessons about the value of friendship and honesty in this movie to each and every one of us.

Methodology

According to Kasriyati et.al. (2019), Translation is having a key part in conveying source language to the target language, as the speaker tells what they want, and convince the receiver to understanding what the speaker says. In addition, Speaking and translating are not the same thing while speaking may lose some grammar, the listener still understands what the speaker is saying. In contrast, translation uses proper grammar and spelling. Explains that a qualitative investigator works with verbal data rather than numerical and statistical data.

Based on these, the subject experiences and viewpoints are the data that are gathered, and the qualitative researcher works to provide a thorough description of the subjects, objects, events, locations, dialogue, and soon. One of the key components of doing and finishing an analysis in research is the research method Ary et al (2002:425). According to the justification given, qualitative analysis of the movie's findings is necessary before the data is presented in a descriptive manner.

Findings and Discussions

In data analysis the writer uses some methods to analyzed the data. Data analyzed is the process of systematically searching and arranging the transcript and other materials that the researcher accumulated to increases her own understanding of them and to enable her to present what she has discover to other. In this process the writer uses some methods to get valid and true data. Interpreting the data found in dialogues, Analyzed the dialogues and classify them according to its categories based on educational value, Verify the dialogues with related theory in this research and gives the conclusion about the educational values in the movie.

Descriptive method was used by the writer in doing the study. Gravetter and Forzano (2010, p.591) state that descriptive method that involves measuring a variable or set of variables as they exist naturally to produce a description of individual variables as they exist within a specific group. In conducting the analysis, the writer analyzed all of educational values in "Fall" movie by using descriptive method.

This descriptive used qualitative as a method to focus on how to manage a study descriptively. Qualitative method is research which does not involve the calculation. Because of that, the descriptive method was used as the method of this research to find and explain all of educational values in "Fall" movie. The writer used the movie script to analyze the data. She analyzed it based on the conversation of the characters in the film.

Data analysis revealed that the movie's educational value could be summed up in dialogue phrases that portrayed the importance of education. Honesty, brave, love and affection, respect, self-discipline, kind and friendly, and fair and humanist were identified to be some educational values.
